

Corporate Risk Management Services

Cameron-Cole provides a comprehensive Corporate Risk Management Service that assesses and interprets the environmental risks involved in a property or business transaction and then helps interpret this risk to our client so that the transaction may properly anticipate these risks.

In today's business environment, decisions must be made with the best understanding available. Making decisions driven by fear or an inaccurate perception of the true risk can produce the difference between a very successful result or a missed opportunity. Having Cameron-Cole's experience of working with environmental regulatory agencies across the U.S., addressing challenging environmental issues, and knowledge of risk management approaches and tools available in the market will equip you with the best resources in the field and a clear advantage in a transaction.

Cameron-Cole has certified Environmental Risk Managers on staff who have completed significant professional training in environmental regulations, technologies, insurance tools and risk identification.

We deliver these strategic services in a variety of approaches to best match each client's situation. This may include the customary charge by the hour, or a flat fee, or a set cost per transaction approach.

Cameron-Cole's in-depth understanding of environmental risk can be a significant advantage to today's corporate decision-maker.
